STATE NEWS.

The Procrastinations of Paul. It is unfortunately easy to forget such. We have not yet forgotten the Procrastinations of Paul, but we will not speak of them now. We will only say that we have a large assortment of Boots and Shoes, which we are selling at very low prices, and we invite all to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Among the illustrated papers in preparation are shown in the Forum, by John Muir, the California naturalist. These are said to be very graphic and picturesque, as the views of the Yosemite Alps are not yet known quite. Mr. Muir is already known to the readers of Scribner by his delightful sketch of The Mountain Sheep of the California Alps, and his articles in the Overland Monthly, Boise Democrat, Pioneer, The Evening Bulletin, San Francisco, Madame Bellocca, etc. His novel will exhibit the state of society in Oregon and California about the year 1850-60, also time of the Ocean, and a period having a remarkable influence in the present Reconstruction period. The story is published to show the good and the bad of the pioneer; a delineation of the men of the woods, and will doubtless give a key to the understanding of the condition of Scribner's Monthly for 1872-3. Mrs. Thomas Hodgen Stannard's new novel of Missouri's development is the leading serial of Scribner for 1872-3. It is the temperance story Mrs. Stannard has written, and will be more generally interesting than any serial which is yet appeared in that magazine. It is noteworthy that Hamilton & Co. have just issued that story in edition, and will publish it in their London magazine before printing in book form. Those who have read Scribner's in anticipation are of the opinion that it carries out the promise of "Dull Leap afterwards." Mr. Stannard's St. contract with Van Gorder a part of the year; to be followed by a tale still from a new writer, Mr. George W. Cable, of New Orleans. Mr. Cable is the author of the Creole sketches, published in Scribner's Monthly, Belles Demoiselle Plantation, The Prudence, Madame Delphine, etc. His novel will exhibit the state of society in Creole Louisiana about the year 1850-60, also time of the Ocean, and a period having a remarkable influence in the present Reconstruction period. The story is published to show the good and the bad of the pioneer; a delineation of the men of the woods, and will doubtless give a key to the understanding of the condition of

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

[From the Kennebec Journal.]

We have complete official returns of the recent State election from all the representative districts, and publish elsewhere in this paper the names residence and politics of all the members elect of the next Maine House of Representatives. The following is the recapitulation by counties

The Republicans have 65, Democrats 25, Greenbackers 61. Republican plurality over the Democrats 40, over the Greenbackers 4. Two of the Democrats are chosen by Republicans, and the opposition in the combined House will have a majority over the Republicans of 19.

It is surprising to look over the returns and notice by what small margins many of the Democratic and Greenback representatives are chosen. There are thirteen representatives on that side of the House whose combined majority amounts to just 130. One is chosen by one vote majority. A little more effort on the part of the Republicans would have saved the House

[From the Concord N. H. Monitor.]

BRAVE WORDS.

The recent campaign in Maine was characterized by great ability on the part of the Republican leaders and press. Foremost in the work, vigilant, tireless, trenchant, was that excellent newspaper, the BANGOR WHIG, whose patriotic editor, Capt. Boutelle, has "the courage of his convictions" at all times. Although defeated, he is not dismayed, and he serves notice on the combination of Greenbackers, Soreheads, and Copperheads, that he will give them no rest until the whole pack of agitators is consigned to the limbo of faithless public servants. Replying to the taunt of a Greenback sheet touching his management of the campaign, Capt. Boutelle says:

> In such a cause we know no such thing as defeat, and we are not more proud of the humble service we were able to render when the Nation's life was assailed, than of the unreserved, uncompromising, if temporarily unsuccessful battle we have fought for the maintenance of the Nation's honor. Fighting for principles that are eternal, we look to the future for our certain triumph, and our party to-day, full arrayed in the panoply of Right, is camped on the ground where the victory is to be won. The day of reckoning has its terrors in store for those who have fostered delusion and laid snares for the feet of the unwary, its advent is awaited by us with the calm assurance of approval. As Mr Emery sometimes indites in poetical figures, we commend to his consideration the following sentiment, which he sacrilegiously paraded at the editorial head of the Bangor Democrat while it was giving aid and comfort to the treasonable war for the destruction of our Government.
> "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again,
> The eternal years of God are hers,
> But error, wounded writhes with pain,
> And dies among his worshippers."

And as our extremely uncongenial neighbor has exhibited some fondness for classical quotations, we commend to him, as eminently adapted for his serious meditation at this time, the following passages from the noblest work of all literature

> Whoso daggeth a pit shall fall therein. Proverbs xxvi 27.
>
> Unstable as water thou shalt not excel. Genesis xlix 4.
>
> Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil. Isa v 20.
>
> There is no peace, saith the Lord, for the wicked. Isa xlviii 22.
>
> For they have sown the wind and they shall reap the whirlwind. Hosea viii 7.
>
> And if the blind lead the blind they shall fall into the ditch. Matt xv 14.
>
> His hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him. Gen. xvi. 12.
> As the crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of a fool. Eccles. vii 6.

The purpose of the Democratic leaders in the Green-back movement is to reconcile the Northern Democracy to the payment of the Southern war claims by making them think that the issue of greenbacks to pay these claims will make everybody prosperous.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Walter Murry Gibson, formerly of South Carolina, and now of the Sandwich Islands, has an ambition. He desires to unite all the Polynesian Islands into one confederacy, with a central government. He does not meet with much encouragement, but continues to urge his scheme. None of the islands are large, and many of them not larger than an Illinois farm.

It is now reported that the plan of the Greenbackers and some of the Democrats in the Legislature respecting the Governorship is to send up the names of Joseph L. Smith and George P. Sewall. It seems that about a hundred votes were thrown for Sewall in the eastern part of the State for the purpose of making him one of the four persons receiving the largest number of votes, and thus eligible to be sent from the House to the Senate. This looks like playing it rather low down on the regular Democrats.—Portland Press.

An official analysis of the public debt, prepared under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, shows that from August 31, 1865, when the backbone of the Rebellion was broken, down to the present time there has been a steady annual decrease ranging from $32 to $4 per capita in the National debt, and a decrease in interest per capita from $ 29 in 1865 to 1.97 for the last fiscal year. And this reduction has been accomplished by the Republican party without imposing any taxation hardly appreciable by the people.

Lord Beaconsfield, in his speech in the House of Lords on the Berlin treaty, said, in an effort to belittle the acquisitions of Russia in Asia, that Batoum harbor was really of little importance, as only six vessels could lie in the bay. The Batoum correspondent of the London News pronounces this a singular error, and says: "On the southern side there is a line of shore at least a thousand yards long, where any ship afloat—save, perhaps, the Great Eastern—can lie safely within sixty or seventy yards of the pebbly beach. At the present moment, the flagship, a large, old fashioned frigate, pierced for forty or fifty guns, lies in such a position. After this first and perfectly sheltered anchorage stretches the entire of the deep, broad bay. How it could come into any one's head to say that it could accommodate but six vessels, is to me singular." Thus the heart of Beaconsfield's attempt to whistle down the Russian acquisitions at not much of a shower, comes to naught.

A Louisiana election law, passed by the Democrats, provides that clerks of assessors of election, who are appointed by the Governor, shall be of the opposition party. Gov. Nicholls, who holds the office to which Gov. Packard was elected, and from which he was lawlessly driven, disregards the law in making such appointments, although his attention has been called to it. In the districts not visited by the yellow fever, bulldozing has been resumed by the persons who resorted to it two years ago. The Democrats intend to sweep the State.

The Minnesota courts are puzzled over a question arising out of the destruction, a little while ago, of the great flour mills in Minneapolis. The damage to one of the mills is $253,037. The insurers claim that of this loss, $147,378 is from fire and $104,654 from explosion, and that they have no responsibility for the latter, their insurance being solely to guard against fire. The mill owners reply that the companies insure against the results directly caused by fire, as in case of damages by the water used in quenching fire, and the steam and smoke attending it. The explosion they claim was caused by fire, and that if the inflammable substance had merely burned without exploding, the damage would have been quite as great. They therefore demand the whole amount.

The Turk, grave as he is, can be sharp enough upon occasion, as the British seamen in the Bosphorus have discovered to their discomfiture. The crews of Admiral Hornby's squadron organized a regatta the other day, and invited the sailors of the Turkish ironclads to join in the sport. To the great surprise and chagrin of the English tars the barge of the Turkish man-of-war Osmanieh led the way in the twelve oared race, and reached the goal far ahead of all competitors. After a little while the secret came out. The Turks had quietly secreted two extra men, two extra rowlocks and two extra oars in the boat, and as soon as the race began rowed with fourteen oars. When victory was assured the extra men slipped overboard and swam ashore. Thus victory smiles upon the brave.

THE EFFECTIVE REMINDERS.

The ludicrous experience of a professional organist in the routine of a religious service seldom manifests itself to the devout worshippers, whose thoughts are elevated above external surroundings, and we record a recent incident which will doubtless be suggestive of other similar experiences not yet in print.

A new organ had been built for a Presbyterian church not far from Cincinnati and was fitted in a recess at the rear of the pulpit; just in front of space for the singers, they were divided in two sections and located on either side toward the adjacent corners of the audience room, facing the sacred desk in singing. By this arrangement the minister and organist were in immediate contact with each other.

After the completion of a new organ, the organist begins to yern for a mechanical power to work the bellows, so that he may feel a freedom in practicing without the irritation and expense of a human machine. So in this case an hydraulic motor was applied in the basement, and seemed to accomplish not only in a most successful manner but satisfied the conscientious scruples of the stricter members, from the fact that it saved one person of the flock from the sin of Sabbath-breaking, and at no greater expense.

On a certain Sunday evening not long since, the church was filled with an attentive audience, and the large chorous choir had well practiced their introductory anthem. As they were approaching its central climax, the organist felt an unusual resistance in pressing the keys, and the pipes of the full organ gave forth a stentorian and screeching utterance which was not intended by the builder of the instrument.

Surmising that in some manner the engine had gained the mastery of the performance, and possessing presence of mind enough to know that any confusion on his part would disorganize singers under his direction, he began pushing in the stop-knobs, first with one hand and then with the other, keeping one hand on the keys, until every stop was off, and kept on apparently playing with close attention to the music, although no sound was given from the organ during his pantomime, while the voices gradually diminished their strength for lack of instrumental support. Yet the engine labored on, and the groanings of the pneumatic mechanism within the case had already caused the perspiration to start from every pore of the face of the anxious player.

Turning meekly around to the preacher he observed that he was about to rise and invite the full congregation to unite with the choir in singing old "Coronation." With a sudden inspiration of generalship he caught the minister's coat sleeve hurriedly whispered: "Dr. B—! Dr. B—! The organ has broken down! Please pray! Pray long enough for me to go down cellar and fix the engine!"

As the Reverend Doctor arose, and solemnly uttered the words, "Let us pray!" the excited organist arose and wended his way past the bowed heads of the congregation, and quickly descended to the cellar, followed by two observant deacons.

There they beheld the active machine exercising its utmost strength in the connection between the bellows and the regulating valve having separated, thus giving an extraordinary supply of wind, carrying the three-inch bellows-pressure up to twenty-five-inch measurements, with conclusive evidence that the bellows reservoir would be burst before the connection could again be made.

The elder deacon, who had contributed the largest amount of money to the organ fund, forgetting the sanctity of the courts above, began dancing around the machine in his excitement, crying to the other unpashioned tones: "O stop it, Brother I—! Stop it, for mercy's sake! or our beautiful organ will be spoiled!"

Meanwhile the patient pastor was earnestly praying for the world in general and specific, with all the eloquence in his command, and also listening to hear if the energetic laboring within the organ had ceased,—the congregation judging from the earnestness and length of the vehement supplication that the usually calm pastor had become entranced with heavenly visions. He continued, however, to storm the battlements of heaven, until the organist had quietly returned to his seat, and signalized by a cough of relief that all was well, which led to a sudden "Amen" as a termination to the episode.

The singing proceeded orderly through the remaining services, but there was no more praying that evening, neither were the congregation or singers aware of the tribulations of their director of music,—a beautiful illustration of the sympathy which may exist between pastor and congregation.

Imagine the gratification felt by our musical friend, when at the close of the service he was surrounded by his friends and congratulated on the fine accompaniment he had played in the opening anthem!

The most musical man in the congregation took him by the hand, and told him that the effect of the organ in the last part of the anthem he had never heard excelled—"No, not even in Europe!"—while others remarked that they had no idea that a church organ was capable of such a delicate drummende as he had given them!
